REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: Claims 1, 3-9 and 11-17 are allowable. None of the prior art of record suggests: (a) the insertion hole being surrounded by a burring portion and a rounded edge being formed between the front surface of the panel and the burring portion, in combination with any one of the light guide transforming when pressed into the insertion hole and is fixed by an outer peripheral surface thereof near the end surface being in pressure contact with an inner peripheral surface of the insertion hole (claim 1), the light guide being pressed into said insertion hole from a front surface side of the panel and transformed and frictionally held by the insertion hole (claim 9); (b) forming an insertion hole through a panel of the electronic device by performing burring from the front surface side thereof to the rear surface side, a rounded edge being formed between the front surface of the panel and the burring portion, in combination with pressing the light guide chip into the insertion hole from the front surface side of the panel, thereby causing the light guide chip to transform and be held in pressure contact with the inner peripheral surface of the insertion hole (claim 7). SAKATA (US 6,353,185 B1) show burring portion (3a, figs.4A-7C) surrounding an insertion hole (3) of an instrument panel (2), but the burring portion transforms outer peripheries of grommet (10 or 1). NAKAJIMA et al (US 6,700,194 B2) shows a burring tool (TP, fig.13) forming a burring hole (28, fig.13 or BP, fig.14) with rounded edges and similarly, DEUGD (US 4,213,323) shows the same, but both do not press against an inserted light guide. BAUER et al (US 4,800,466) show panel holes the receive fitted ends of light guides, where the panel holes have some protruding portions, but they do not surround the any of the insertion holes.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
